Masters Certificate in Enterprise Risk Management and Governance

For an organization to succeed, it must strike a balance between risk and reward to create, preserve and realize enterprise value. Effective risk management is an essential competency that supports business performance in a changing environment. It makes a considerable difference over the long term, yet few business leaders have benefited from training in this area, and many struggle to implement it simply because they lack the proper techniques.

That is what our dynamic three-module Masters Certificate in Enterprise Risk Management and Governance program – the only one of its kind in Canada – is all about: achieving strategic objectives and meeting performance targets by effectively managing the risks your organization faces.

Program Faculty

Rob Quail

Program Director

Rob Quail holds a Bachelor of Applied Science degree in Industrial Engineering from the University of Toronto. Rob is a widely respected author, facilitator and lecturer on Enterprise Risk Management. He has participated as a lecturer in the program since 2011.

Rob established the pioneering Enterprise Risk Management processes, tools and methodologies at Hydro One Networks Inc. that are today widely regarded as best-practice. The practices developed by Rob in collaboration with the management team at Hydro One became the subject of many studies and papers, including a major “leading practice” case study by Harvard Business School. While at Hydro One, Rob also held key leadership roles in the areas of technology transformation and outsourcing. Later, Rob was appointed Vice President of Customer Service at Hydro One in the wake of a difficult billing system implementation, and during this time he applied Enterprise Risk Management principles to lead dramatic improvements in all areas of customer service, including call centre operations, billing, electricity conservation, and collections.

The program provides excellent overview of theory and practical application of ERM. Hearing about successes and challenges in implementing ERM from industry experts is extremely valuable and useful.

V. Goralski

H. Desai

VP, Project Office, Symcor Inc.

The program was excellent and exceeded my expectations from the environment, context, and presence of collaboration with classmates. I especially appreciate the cross-industry representation of the attendees and presentations.
